

Facts About Sexual Orientation Discrimination

Nevada state law protects individuals against employment discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation. Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, protects individuals against employment discrimination on the basis of sex. Discrimination against an individual because of sexual orientation is discrimination because of sex in violation of Title VII.

Sexual orientation is defined as having an orientation to heterosexuality, homosexuality, or bisexuality. The law applies to employers with 15 or more employees, including state and local governments, to employment and temporary staffing agencies, and to labor organizations.

It is unlawful to discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because of his/her sexual orientation in regard to hiring, termination, promotion, compensation, job training, or any other term, condition, or privilege of employment.

Harassment

Harassment on the basis of sexual orientation violates the law. Slurs, "jokes," offensive or derogatory comments, or other verbal or physical conduct based on an individual's sexual orientation constitute unlawful harassment if the conduct creates an intimidating, hostile, or offensive working environment, or interferes with the individual's work performance.

Employers have a responsibility to maintain a workplace free of harassment. Employers may be responsible for any on-the-job harassment due to sexual orientation, by their agents and supervisory employees, regardless of whether the acts were authorized or specifically forbidden by the employer. Under certain circumstances, an employer may be responsible for the acts of non-employees who harass their employees at work.

Disparate Treatment

The law prohibits employment decisions based on gender stereotypes and assumptions about abilities, traits, or the performance of individuals on the basis of sexual orientation. State law prohibits both intentional discrimination and neutral job policies that disproportionately exclude individuals on the basis of sexual orientation and that are not job related.

Retaliation

It is also unlawful to retaliate against an individual for opposing employment practices that discriminate based on sexual orientation or for filing a discrimination charge, testifying, or participating in any way in an investigation, proceeding, or litigation under state or federal law.

Public Accommodations

Nevada state law prohibits discrimination because of sexual orientation in places of public accommodation.

Places of "public accommodation" include any establishment or place to which the public is invited or which is intended for public use.
