Re: Written comment for the October 5, 2026 DETR stakeholder meeting (Executive Order 2026-003), Commission on Postsecondary Education

Dear Ms. Craig,

Quality Training Centers has trained tradespeople in Las Vegas since 1994. We submit this comment in support of the Commission on Postsecondary Education and ask that it be included in the stakeholder record presented to the Commission on November 4. We have one recommendation.

We recommend that at least one of the two Commission seats designated for representatives of private postsecondary educational institutions under NRS 394.385 be held by a representative of a non-accredited school that does not participate in federal Title IV student aid. As the Commission is composed today, no voting member represents that part of the school community it licenses.

This matters because, for non-accredited schools, the Commission is the only oversight body. There is no accrediting agency or federal aid program setting standards alongside it, so every regulation the Commission adopts applies to these schools directly and in full. Many run short, career-focused programs in the trades, and their students pay through personal funds, workforce grants, VA education benefits and employer sponsorship rather than federal student aid. Having that perspective at the table would help the Commission weigh how a proposed rule will work across all of the schools it oversees.

This is not a criticism of anyone serving today. The current Commissioners serve with distinction, and the members in the institution seats bring valuable experience. Our recommendation is about balance, so every segment of the schools the Commission licenses has a voice.

This could be accomplished through the Governor's appointments as institution seats come open, without any change in law. If the Commission and the Department would prefer to make it permanent, NRS 394.385 could be amended to specify that one of the two institution seats be held by a representative of a non-accredited institution. We would welcome either path.

We plan to attend the October 5 meeting in Las Vegas and are glad to serve as a resource to the Commission and its staff.

Respectfully,

Christopher Roth
